New Sugar Rules By Rationing Board

The local rationing board reminds Andover residents possessing War Ration Book I that the weight value of Stamp No. 10 has been set at three pounds. The value period of the stamp is from December 16 to January 31.

No change has been made in the percentage which is used in computing the allotments of institutional and industrial users. The allotment for the January-February period will be applicable on the same percentages of the sugar base as that used in the November-December period, and will be so applicable until further notice.

A new amendment has been made by the Office of Price Administration for the benefit of consumers who eat regularly at some other establishment besides their home. Hardships had been imposed, in some instances, upon persons affected by the original provision where twelve meals a week were eaten outside the home, but sugar was also needed for other meals eaten at home.

Other purposes of the amendment are to bring the sugar and coffee rationing regulations into agreement, to permit owners or managers of establishments to detach and destroy stamps for expired ration periods, rather than surrender them to the board, and to include a new provision requiring that a consumer's book be returned to him temporarily for use in obtaining another ration book.

Holy Name Society Rally This Sunday

The annual rally for the Holy Name societies of the Catholic churches in the Lawrence area will be held this Sunday afternoon at 3:00 at the Holy Rosary church, Lawrence.

Because of war conditions, no special bus will be chartered this year for members of the St. Augustine's branch planning to attend. The organization has been assured, however, that a sufficient number of busses will operate on the Andover-Lawrence line Sunday afternoon so that all members who intend to travel by bus will be accommodated.

Lt. Gov. Cahill To Address Service Club

Lieut. Gov. Horace T. Cahill of Braintree, one of the ablest men in the present state administration and one of the most distinguished speakers to appear at one of its meetings this year, will address Service club members at their next meeting, on Thursday, January 14. Dinner will be served at 6:15 at the Square and Compass club.

First Andover Boy Is Killed In Action

Pvt. Arthur J. Gauthier
Was Shawsheen Resident

In a telegram from the War Department last Thursday morning, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Gauthier of 4 Ferndale avenue, Shawsheen, were informed of the death of their son, Private Arthur J. Gauthier, 24, in recent South Pacific engagements of the Marine Corps.

Pvt. Gauthier was the first Andover resident to be killed in action in the present war, though the town's roll of honor already bore three names before his passing. Pvt. Edward P. Guild of Walnut avenue was killed in an automobile accident on April 26 at Graingers, N. C., and two other Andover men, David Brown of Essex street and Robert Thompson of Hidden Field, had died in the line of duty before the outbreak of war.

Pvt. Gauthier had been in the Marine Corps for about eleven months. His preliminary training was at San Diego, Calif., but he had been in the battle area since late in May. Strangely enough, his family had never seen him in uniform.

He was one of three Gauthier brothers in service, his parents having been honored a few months ago by the local V.F.W. post for their enviable service record. An older brother, Ernest J. Gauthier, 28, is stationed in California with the Army Signal corps, and a younger brother, Thomas Warren Gauthier, is now at sea as a seaman, first class, in the Naval Reserve.

Other surviving relatives include four sisters, Rita and Catherine of Shawsheen, Mrs. Dorothy Lacharite of Lawrence and Mrs. Made-

First 1943 Inductees Go January 7 Andover Men Form Two-Thirds Of Group To Be Inducted; All Age Groups Are Represented

To Discuss School Heating Saturday

Meeting Called To Discuss Fuel Problem

The finance and advisory board of the school committee has called a general meeting of West Center and North school parents, and other interested residents, to discuss fuel and transportation problems in that area. The meeting will be held Saturday evening at 7:30 in the West church vestry.

The meeting is being called by the sub-committee since it wishes to present its views to the public before the matter comes before the full committee at its regular meeting Tuesday night. No action of any sort has been taken as yet, since all the schools in question are closed for the Christmas holidays.

The pressing fuel problem has caused the sub-committee to consider conversion from oil to coal of the boilers in the West Center and North schools, in West Andover, and the Bradlee school in Ballardvale. No similar meeting in Ballardvale has been planned as yet.

Because of the lack of oil, all boilers in these schools have been put out, and the water has been shut off in the three buildings until they are reopened next week.

The sub-committee, made up of Harold T. Houston, chairman, John M. Erving and John MacKenzie, has

A fairly large group of inductees will form the next quota assigned to Local Board 3, scheduled to leave the headquarters in the town hall next Thursday morning for physical examinations and induction at the Boston induction center.

No leader has been appointed for the group as yet. No men in the 18-19 year old class are named on the list released by the draft board, but all the other age groups are represented.

Nearly two-thirds of the men are present or former Andover residents, an unusually high percentage.

Those to be inducted are: Alyre Jerome Godin, 36 Butler street, Lawrence; Foster Livingston Bryan, 7 Argyle street; John Schofield Gill, 16 Cuba street; John Marudzinski, 99 North street; Frank George McCaffrey, 142 East Haverhill street, Lawrence; Walter Francis Muller, 3 Lupine road.

Edward Patrick Flanagan, 23 Thompson street, Waterbury, Conn.; Oscar Spector, 26 Washington avenue; Joseph Edward O'Brien, 52 Summer street; Roland Bowman Hammond, Jr., 9 Bradstreet road, North Andover; Charles William Saalfrank, 59 Lowell street; Ralph Perkins Gilman, 17 Roseland street, Methuen; Fred-

Stuart Travis Dead; Well Known Academy Artist

Stuart Travis, well-known local artist who had constructed many models and exhibits of interest at various Phillips academy buildings, died early Christmas afternoon at his home here. Burial took place Sunday afternoon at the Old Chapel cemetery on the Hill, with committal exercises conducted by Rev. A. Graham Baldwin, Phillips academy minister.

Mr. Travis had first come here in 1928 to assist in the extensive building and remodeling program then going on at Phillips. His first assignment was to make a decorative and historical map of Phillips Academy for the Oliver Wendell Holmes school library.

Later, he designed the large gates to the Sanctuary, also carving the stone birds surmounting them.

He designed and executed another map, depicting the reconstructed history of pre-historical times, which now hangs in the school dining hall, and to which he

Andover Met 1942's Challenge Well

War Activities Paramount In Town During Past Year,
Despite Important Cultural And Educational Events

As the old year draws to a close, it is apparent that the town of Andover has passed through the hardest year of the greatest of the eight wars in its history.

War activities of one kind or another had the greatest effects of any news events on its citizenry. The sale of new automobiles had been already frozen as the new year came in, and 1942 was hardly a week old before the rationing of tires, first of a long series of administered commodities, was put into effect.

Civilian defense, which was to engage the efforts of at least a thousand residents before the year was out, got its first big impetus with a mock air raid, complete with the new-fangled "incidents" on the night of January 29.

At the same time, the town's cultural and social life was nourished with more activities than it had been in many a year. A host of distinguished lecturers, actors, authors, musicians appeared here under the auspices of several groups.

The schools weathered their first year well, Phillips Academy running a revolutionary and highly successful summer school, the public schools fostering the study of aeronautics and other technical sciences.

ICTORIOUS NEW YEAR

The coming year will offer problems that America has never had to face before. It will have its hardships, but they are as nothing compared to the privations that the founders of our Nation had to experience. With that indomitable courage, fortitude and tenacity of purpose that permeated their lives, we can surmount our obstacles and win through to victory.

Andover Women In Wartime

ENSIGN MARY COREY

Andover should be very proud to know that, among the hundreds from this town in Uncle Sam's service are fourteen girls, an excellent record. Eleven of them, among them some of the first local women to enter service, are army and navy nurses; there are two WAACS and one WAVE.

From all appearances, there will be many more entering the armed forces in the near future. Those now in service are:

Lieut. Dorothy Morehouse, of the Army Nurse Corps, who used to live at 124 Chestnut street. A graduate of the Lawrence General hospital school who also took the public health course at Simmons college, later serving as public health nurse in Concord, she is now stationed at Fort Wright, New York.

Second Lieut. Eleanor Reed, of 3 Hidden road, has been in service since last February. She was graduated from the Newton hospital school, and later did private nursing. She's now located at a hospital somewhere in the Caribbean area.

Bridie O'Beirne, the first Andover girl listed on the rolls of the WAACS, is now taking her preliminary training at Cedar Falls, Iowa. Her father, Roger O'Beirne, was formerly employed at the Tyer Rubber company, and Auxiliary O'Beirne, who, by the way, was born in Ireland, worked in the Tyer office before entering service.

There's also Second Lieut. Irene Curtis, formerly of 69 Park street, who is now stationed at the Lovell hospital at Fort Devens. She graduated from the Lowell General hospital school in 1926, taking a post-graduate course at the Boston

2nd LIEUT. MARJORIE KYDD

Lying-In hospital. She did private nursing before entering service in February.

Second Lieut. Grace Hatch has been a member of the Army Nurse Corps for nearly two years now, and is at present at an Army general hospital in the Caribbean area. She's a graduate of Beth Israel hospital, N. Y., where she was night supervisor before going into the service.

Helen Beer is Andover's only physiotherapist now serving with the armed forces. She's the daughter of the Arthur Beers of Summer street, graduated from Punchard in 1937, and studied physiotherapy at Sargent school, graduating in 1942. She entered service in May.

Ensign Helen Harkin, a Navy nurse, is now stationed at the Naval hospital in Chelsea.

Ensign Mary Corey, who used to live at 55 High street, a graduate of St. John's hospital, Lowell, with the class of 1936, is now in charge of the dispensary at the Boston Navy Yard. She was supervisor of welfare nursing at St. John's and at the Breen school, Lawrence, before enlisting July 15.

Another former High street girl, Second Lieut. Marjorie Kydd, a graduate of the Melrose hospital school, is now at Fort Jackson, Columbia, South Carolina. She was a supervisor at Mass. General before entering service as early as October, 1940.

Lieut. Stephanie Marcus, of 40 Corbett street, is at the Fort Ord (Calif.) station hospital. She graduated from the Boston Memorial hospital, and enlisted in August of this year.

Lieut. Mary Winslow, daughter of the George H. Winslows of Lowell street, is serving at the station hospital at Camp Blanding, Florida.

Lieut. Elizabeth M. Beedles is also serving at Camp Blanding; she used to live at 400 Main street. Then there's Gwen Armitage, former teacher at Punchard, who's entered training with the WAVES about a month ago, and Betty Buchanan, former Townsman editor, who is now an officer in the WAACS.

AT EASE!

Third Class Signalman Thomas "Mike" O'Dowd went back to sea Monday after a thirty-day furlough in town. Mike was on the U. S. Naval transport, Tasker H. Bliss, sunk in the North African landings off Casablanca. He had quite a time trying to cash a bankroll in Algerian money while he was home; maybe he'll have better luck in his new base at Norfolk, Va.

Midshipman Dick Sullivan has returned to Annapolis after spending the holidays at his home on Haverhill street.

The servicemen's fund committee has received its first reply from a member of American base forces overseas, P.F.C. Bill Miller. Good hunting, Bill.

Lieut. (j.g.) Milton C. Blanchard visited friends in town over the week-end.

Bob Price is back in town, visiting his sister on Appletree lane.

Home for the week-end was Ensign Mal McTernan, Jr., who spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm McTernan of Wolcott avenue. Mal is at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

We asked P.F.C. Harry Duke, looking fine on a short leave from his Marine Corps duties, what those two stars on his chest stood for. Harry replied very proudly that they stand for the two battles he took part in recently on ship-board in the South Pacific.

Henry Boucher, wearing the eagle and stripe of an aviation radioman, third-class, was home over the Christmas holidays. Henry reported that the trains were pretty crowded on the way up from Cecil Field in Jacksonville.

Russell Lawson has been promoted to first lieutenant at Camp Dix, N. J., where he's in the ordnance department. He's the son of the David Lawsons of Wolcott avenue.

Lieut. James P. Moran, formerly of Ballardvale and the Suffolk Law school, is now with the ferry command of the Army Air Force. Incidentally, he's the only Andover man we know of who's located in Montana—he's at Great Falls.

And First Lieut. Winthrop Reed is studying what makes tanks tick in Detroit. Win went to Punchard and M. I. T., a few years back.

Cpl. John Thomas, formerly stationed in Kansas City, is now at Morris Field, near Charlotte, N. C., with the AAF.

Seaman Bill Broderick, now at Bangor, Me., had a few days at his home on Brechin terrace over Christmas.

Pvt. Bill King is at one of those elegant Atlantic City hotels we heard so much of when the Army took them over, a few months back.

William S. Wrigley, speaking of elegant addresses, is at "Camp Maximileana Leina," at Las Vegas, N. M.

"SHADOWS BEFORE"

That's what coming events are supposed to cast, according to the proverb, and the Servicemen's Fund committee has three activities currently in mind:

1. "Susan and God," January 15, at the Auditorium.
2. The policemen's ball, February 26.
3. A general song fest, January 24—details later.

A meeting of the full committee will be held Wednesday evening in the court room.

Lieut. Curtis Appointed As Group Liaison Officer

Lieut. Albert F. Curtis of Da comb road, recently a platoon leader with the local State Guard company, has been appointed liaison officer of Group 4 of Civilian Defense Region 4. He will serve on the staff of Major W. Van V. Warren, M.S.G., commanding the group which serves this area.

Lieut. Curtis will be obliged to give up his regular work in order to spend full time at the regional headquarters at Bay Lodge, Methuen. He has been given a leave of absence from his place of employment for the duration of the war.

His duties will include keeping in contact with all State Guard units on duty in tests, blackouts and the like, as well as co-operating with civilian defense officials of the region. He has been a valuable member, and later an officer, of the local company since its inception.

At last Sunday's drill, Capt. H. Garrison Holt, commanding officer, announced that several promotions had been made as the result of examinations taken the previous week. They were: Pvt. Kenneth S. Minard to staff sergeant, P.F.C. William J. Beaulieu and Francis R. Rody to corporal; Pvts. Claremont I. Gray, Albert J. Bergeron, Gilbert H. Stone, Howard P. Nash and Dino G. Valz to private first-class.

Andover Woman Traveled Widely In North Africa

Local residents who are following closely the progress of the North African campaign will undoubtedly be interested to know that Mrs. Frances P. McClellan of Orchard street traveled extensively through that region nearly 44 years ago.

During January of 1899, she travelled from Tangier through Morocco, Algeria and into Tunis before embarking for now-beleaguered Malta.

Her comments on the country, in the form of notes, are of interest today, however much conditions may have changed. Nemours, in Algeria, the notes describe as "very warm, with high rocky promontories, and water so clear you can watch the fishes many fathoms down... clumsy lighters are rowed out with alfalfa aboard to load on our steamer, and to take off the natives."

Docking at Oran, Mrs. McClellan entrained for Algiers, traveling through "richly cultivated country that seemed like Normandy—windmills, horses with leather-covered pomells, yoked oxen, as in Spain."

Once in Algiers, she took up her residence in the famous Hotel St. George, "surrounded by a marvelous garden, and situated on a whole hillside of gardens overlooking the harbor of Algiers. We ate breakfast on a balcony to watch the sun rise over a snow-capped mountain. The old part of the town has stepped streets, very narrow and crooked, and the houses, braced with timbers, meet overhead at the second story."

A journey through mountains to Setif brought into view, "pools crusted with ice, long-haired cows, Arab shepherds with sweeping burnouses swung over their right shoulders... spent three nights at Biskra, or the Garden of Allah, incidentally taking a camel trip far out into the desert. This is the metropolis for the wild tribes from the south, their market, trading post and amusement center."

At Tunis stood a Roman aqueduct approaching the city, said the notes, adding "spent most of the day among the ruins of Carthage before embarking for Malta."

Russian Relief Society Praises Local Branch

Mrs. Julius Rockwell of Lowell street, Shawsheen, who is active in the Andover Russian War Relief society, has recently received a letter from Beulah Burhoe, secretary of the national committee, congratulating the local group on its fine progress.

Miss Burhoe's letter said, "the last two packages have arrived at our warehouse, and we are enthusiastic about the type and quality of the garments you sent. Keep up the good work."

The packages contained, among other things, 25 pairs of woolen socks, 11 caps, seven woolen bathrobes, ten warm coats, 20 sweaters, as well as blankets, skirts, dresses and ski suits.

The local chapter of the American Red Cross lent the use of its Musgrove building quarters for the collection and storage of the articles as well as contributing a quantity of materials.

Mrs. Frances McClellan of Orchard street sent a large package of new clothing, worth about $50, to the New York offices of the society.

Local Photographers Exhibit At Addison

A new exhibition, "Photographers of Northern New England," is being shown at the Addison Gallery from December 18 to January 10. The purpose of the show is to show that photography is "artistic expression... in the sensitive handling of a scientific instrument... The selection... was made primarily on the basis of artistic imagination, though technical competence was considered in all cases."

The Gallery is planning to make such an exhibition an annual event, increasing each year the territory from which photographers will be invited to submit their work. Several pictures in the present group will be purchased for the Gallery's permanent collection.

Several Andover photographers are represented among the contributing artists. Among them are G. Grenville Benedict, who is showing "Armillary sphere at night," "Lifeboat" and "Portrait." Francis Cookson is exhibiting "Future virtuoso."

Frederick R. Hulme has three photographs, "Cape Cod dory," "Ipswich light" and "September haze." Kenneth S. Minard is showing "In Memoriam" and "Noel."

Miss Hoel Engaged To Lawrence Pastor

Mr. and Mrs. Nils Hoel of Summer street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eva Hoel, to Rev. Felix Danford Lion, minister of the Unitarian church in Lawrence.

Miss Hoel is a senior at Wheelock college. Rev. Mr. Lion attended DePauw university, and received his A.B. degree from the University of Chicago and his B.D. degree from Meadville theological school.

Gauthier

leine Andrews of Shawsheen.

Pvt. Gauthier graduated from St. Augustine's parochial school with the class of 1932, later attending Pynchard high school for two years. He was employed in the shipping department at Shawsheen mill for several years before entering service.

A requiem high mass was celebrated Tuesday morning at St. Augustine's church for Pvt. Gauthier, and was attended by an unusually large number of parishioners. The mass, offered each Tuesday morning for parish members in service, was changed to a requiem high mass for the special service.

Arthur Gauthier's loss is a distinct one to his scores of friends, and to the town as well. His work at Shawsheen, where he operated a power truck traveling through several departments, made him acquainted with a great number of employees and officials who are saddened by the news of his untimely passing.

His friends will remember for many years his straightforward nature, his frank and challenging eye, the bit of a swagger with which he used to walk. He had a keen sense of humor, and always appeared to be charged with an effervescent vitality. His classmates at St. Augustine's school, of whom the writer happened to be one, will remember him as a leader in sports who will be also remembered, once the battle has been won, as a leader in the ranks of Andover's fighting men.

Red Cross Campaign Committee Meets

The members of the Red Cross roll call committee met Sunday afternoon at 4:00 in the Red Cross rooms in the Musgrove building to make preliminary plans for the 1943 campaign, which is expected to be one of the most intensive ever conducted here.

Stafford A. Lindsay, roll call chairman, presided over the meeting. Others attending included C. Carleton Kimball, chairman of the local chapter; Maurice J. Curran, James Gould, Harry I. Emmons, Philip Ripley, Needham Brown, Mrs. C. Edward Buchan, and John C. Moynihan.

Heavy Rains Cause Difficult Traveling

Heavy rain on top of a fairly recent snowfall yesterday made Andover streets and sidewalks considerably more slushy and slippery than they have been in several years.

Damage was reported, particularly in the outlying sections of town, to trees and shrubbery, augmented by the sleet and ice which formed later in the evening. Traffic through town was very light, and bus and delivery schedules bogged down completely in some instances.

Hardly a vestige remained on the ground Thursday morning of the three-inch snowfall which had been on the ground yesterday morning, and sizeable puddles were still to be found in the central section of town.

A Happy New Year

We Mean Business

The 78th Congress is going to take over within a few days—and we hope they're really going to take over. No, we don't want any more haggling over how much training the army should be required to give men before they go overseas; we think the army should be allowed to run its own little project without having to bother with a bunch of Congressmen who are unaware of the real military demands of this war.

But we do think that Congress should take over something and that is the running of this government of ours. It's all right for a legislative body under the guise of national emergency to pass over its powers to a central authority for quicker, more expeditious action, but headlong flight into such an expediency is bad if the central authority who receives these powers is unable to handle them in a businesslike manner.

The present administration was, as everyone knows, wasteful to the extreme in the depression and post-depression days. Most of us when the war started, hoped that a great national emergency would imbue, even the most wasteful, with a desire to save every penny so that not one of our soldiers would lack for things they need. But that was a hope forlorn. A policy of wastefulness, of disorderly pell-mell rushing into things—you can't lose it overnight. The administration just can't get out of its old habit of spending, hiring, spending some more, hiring some more. They hire somebody and then can't find enough to keep the new employee busy, so they think up something. And that costs money. More often than not it means a new flood of questionnaires which take up a good part of the valuable time of today's businessmen.

If all the unnecessary employees in the federal government were dismissed, and if all the unnecessary work that the federal government is now making the average citizen do were eliminated, what a boon that would be to production. We might even have to have a manpower commissioner. Then, with all these employees out of government work and into some war industry, still more would be released, because the post office department would have men to spare. The work of that department now is complicated and increased by the presence of the many tons of franked mail that pours forth from Washington. No wonder that the post office always has a deficit. It has to carry free of charge all the brain-children of some administrators whose efforts would indicate a subnormal intellect. Certainly the common sense touch is absent from Washington; certainly the madness that is Washington is no indication of things getting done, but rather of people doing things that they know nothing about, getting in each other's way, duplicating each other's functions, if functions they have—in general, driving the people of America mad.

We'll go without heat; we'll go without gasoline; we'll give up our canned foods—but we certainly think that the administration has to lead the way by showing that it's economy-minded, too. We'll buy bonds and we'll pay taxes—but we'd feel much better about it if we knew that the money we were investing or spending in this way were going to the boys in Africa or Guadalcanal rather than to a bunch of unnecessary civilian employees in Washington.

It's a new Congress; its complexion is slightly different. But it should have a message to take to the Administration, and that is that the people back home mean business. The people back home want to win the war; the people back home don't want to hamper their boys by allowing a mad Washington to indirectly hamper the production of those things that the boys need. We mean business; we want Washington to mean business, too.

COMMUNICATIONS

To All Friends of the Christmas Seal Sale:

You will be glad to know that, with your help, we have reached last year's goal.

Mrs. Edward C. Nichols, chairman of the public and private school sales of Santa Claus buttons and Lorraine Cross bangles, has turned in $54.25—a big gain over last year's receipts from the same sources.

Miss Mary E. Bancroft, chairman of the booth sale at the postoffice, has turned in $40. A detailed report will be given as soon as all the returns are in.

Other earnest members of this year's committee were Mrs. Frank L. Brigham, Mrs. Mathew W. Colquhoun, Miss Barbara Loomer, Mrs. James L. Toohey, Mrs. William A. Trow, Miss Helen Eaton and Miss Anna W. Kuhn.

No words of appreciation are adequate to express our thanks to each member of the committee, who worked so hard to get the Christmas seals into every home. And to you who have helped by your generous, prompt response, our gratitude is great.

In case there are still seals which haven't been returned, please do send them back, with or without payment.

Happy New Year to everyone.

LUCY ALLEN EATON, Chairman
Christmas Seal Committee

To the Editor:

The President of the United States has designated New Year's Day, 1943, as a national day of prayer. It is always important for people of a nation to acknowledge their dependence on God, and to seek His guidance and His strength. In a time of crisis such as this, it is indispensable to the welfare of our nation and of our people individually.

In the observance of this day, the citizens are urged to be faithful in their private and family devotions, to attend any services of prayer which may be held in the churches, and to tune in on radio services of prayer and devotions.

A service of Holy Communion will be observed at Christ church at 10:00 tomorrow morning, and the regular Sunday schedule of masses will be in effect at St. Augustine's church.

DONALD H. SAVAGE
Chairman, Andover Ministers

This Sober Town

Every year at this time, we hear barrels and barrels of that familiar nonsense ballad, "Twas the night before Christmas." From every source we hear the well-worn but never tiresome "On Dasher, on Blitzen," "Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse" and all the rest of it.

We propose to do honor, instead, to that greater creator who first conceived the phrase, "a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year." Whatever the reason, those words are stuck like burrs on the cloth of human thinking.

Why is it that no one ever calls it a jolly Christmas or a happy Christmas, or possibly an uproarious Christmas? Why not a prosperous New Year, or a constructive New Year, or even a completely disastrous New Year? No, it seems that Christmas must be forever

"merry," and New Year's perpetually "happy." And perhaps it's better that way.

"The Scottie dog is dead; long live the Scottie dog!"

That seems about the best observation we can make on the Christmas just past. In former years, Scottie dogs had steadily been gaining in Christmas card popularity until it appeared that they would soon drive Santa Claus to cover.

There were Scottie dogs standing before wreath-festooned doors. Scottie dogs stretched before fireplaces. Scottie dogs looking mournfully at children. We began to look for cards showing Scottie dogs climbing down chimneys in the traditional manner.

Not Christmas alone—it took a Scottie dog to wish you a nice birthday, or a cheerful convalescence, or a jubilant wedding anniversary. At one time, Western Union put out a special Scottiegram.

But last Friday, when we looked over our collection of greeting cards, not a Scottie was to be seen among them. Perhaps the Scotties are sending cards to each other this year instead.

Major Major was in town this week. No, it's not repetition; it's a fact.

He was Captain Major until he was promoted some months back. When he was born, he was just Bernard Major. Then he went to West Point, and of course it was inevitable that some day he'd be Major Major. Mrs. Major is the former Laura Fitzgerald, secretary at the Merrimack Mutual Fire Insurance Company a few years ago.

When Captain Major was promoted to major down in Louisiana, the Associated Press picked up the story and it appeared all over the country. It caught the eye of one young lady in a far-western state. She wrote to him, congratulating him, wishing him luck, and hoping that he'd have as much fun with his title and name as she had had with hers. The signature was "Ruth Ruth."

Lately we have been faced with a variety of painful decisions, like whether we should wear out our rubbers and get no more, or wear out the rubber heels on our shoes and go shoeless. Or whether to drink our coffee without sugar, or eat sugar and save the coffee.

Yesterday we were bothered in the same way. Should we walk on ice and break our neck, or walk through puddles and catch pneumonia?

Thursday evening is P. T. A. night, with a regular business meeting and a talk by Superintendent of Schools Edward I. Erickson. This meeting is for all persons interested in school activities.

Friday evening, a business meeting of the Friendly Guild will be held, and all members are asked to be present.

Party Held For Class

Miss Doris Shaw entertained the members of her Sunday school class with a Christmas party at her home on Andover street recently. Games were played, and refreshments were served by the hostess.

Calendar For January

January 2—community association meets. January 7—P.T.A. meeting. Jan. 8—business meeting, Friendly Guild. Jan. 10—missionary meeting at Union Congregational church. Jan. 22—meeting of Friendly Guild.

Christmas Parties Successful

The pupils of the Methodist and Union Congregational church schools climaxed a full day of Christmas merriment in the churches Friday evening, when programs were held there. Santa was on hand to present the children with gifts.

The community party was also a decided success, with a large group enjoying old-time and modern dances. Gifts were exchanged, cigarettes being given to the servicemen present, and there were refreshments for everyone.

Church Service League

The members of the church service league of Union Congregational church met at the home of its president, Mrs. Alice Prisley of Marland road, Wednesday.

Cantata Presented

A cantata, "The Mystery of Christmas," was presented Sunday evening. Miss Joan Moody was director, with Joseph Stott as organist, for the musical presentation of the Christmas story. Candlelight in the church made the scenes very realistic.

"Susan And God" To Be Given Here January 15

The Tributary Theatre Players, prominent Lawrence theatrical group, will present Rachel Crothers' Broadway hit of a few seasons ago, "Susan and God," at the Memorial Auditorium on Friday evening, January 15. Proceeds will go to the Andover Servicemen's Fund.

Local people with roles in the production are Francis Rodericks, as Leeds, and Stephen Whitney, as Clyde Rochester.

Assisting in the technical aspects of the production will be Virginia Wise, Everdike and Antoinette Thiras, Isabelle Fenner, Rita Roberge, and Frances McTernan, all of Andover.

The Beginning of a New Delivery Service

We have already made the announcement that as of December 31, 1942, we were discontinuing our regular delivery service. This drastic change has been caused,

First—by the extreme shortage of gasoline and supplies necessary to operate a delivery truck. At present we have used most of our January quota of gasoline in order to make our Christmas deliveries possible.

Second—by the extreme shortage of manpower.

Third—by the new program of food rationing. In anticipation of the point system of rationing so many food items, where it is going to be impracticable to sell rationed food by telephone, there will be less occasion to make delivery of food. The customer will be coming to market personally with her ration book in order to exchange the coupons for rationed foods.

However, although there are restrictions which we must consider, and rules and regulations with which we must comply, still we are going to try to utilize our limited supply of gasoline, as long as our equipment lasts, to make at least one delivery a week to a customer of the articles which she will not be able to carry home with her. At this time we cannot say on which day of the week delivery will be made. It is going to take time to build such a delivery system and it is going to take co-operation of the customer in planning her needs in advance.

STAMPS

SUGAR—Stamp No. 10 is good for 3 pounds until January 31.

COFFEE—Stamp No. 27 is good for one pound to January 3. Remember, it is not valid after January 3rd. So please redeem them as quickly as possible. There isn't much time left!

At the close of the year we wish to extend to our customers our sincere thanks for their patronage and fine co-operation in helping us to carry on. We pledge to them that we shall try to do our best in the year to come—a year in which we shall join with them in praying and fighting for victory.

There was bad news, of course. Andover residents were saddened early in the year by the death of an army man, later by the killing and wounding of two local Marines. The Coconut Grove disaster, while causing the death of no local people, reached into many Andover homes.

sang at George Washington hall on February 19. Cecil Roberts, English novelist, had an enthralled audience at Abbot on the last day of that month.

Stanley Chapple of Tanglewood conducted a joint concert by the Phillips and Abbot musical clubs on the 28th, and lectured later in the year for the League of Women Voters. Dr. Mary F. Cushman, famous physician and missionary in Africa, was at Union Congregational Church on March 24, and Richard W. Rowan, secret service authority, at Phillips May 1. Archibald MacLeish, poet, librarian of Congress and head of the OFF, gave an address at Phillips on May 15.

Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war and president of the school's board of trustees, spoke briefly at the commencement exercises on June 12, returning here November 14. Governor Saltonstall was present for the awarding of the Army-Navy E to Tyer Rubber Company on September 22. Louis Fischer, who had recently had an exclusive interview with Gandhi, spoke here October 2; the Don Cossacks gave their annual concert on November 3; Daniel J. Doherty, past national commander of the American Legion, spoke to the Service Club on October 22.

Max Lerner, ex-editor of the Nation, addressed the November Club on November 16, and Jane Louise Mesick, dean of Simmons College, on December 1. Commandant Laurence J. Quigley of the Chelsea Naval Hospital made two impressive appearances in Andover, on October 11 and November 12.

MUNICIPAL LIFE

Many changes, mostly occasioned by the entrance into service of local officials, were made in elective and appointive positions during the year.

In the first week of 1942, Selectman J. Everett Collins assumed the duties of chairman of the local rationing board. Kenneth L. Sherman, superintendent of schools, went on active duty with the Navy on January 17, and Edward I. Erickson, head of one of New Hampshire's school districts succeeded him. Roy E. Hardy and Edward P. Hall were elected selectmen; Fred Doyle and Jesse Bottomley, members of the Board of Public Works, in March. There was no school committee contest.

Walter Tomlinson became chief blackout officer in the middle of March; the B. P. W. was meanwhile putting sandpiles in 17 places throughout town, for possible air-raid need. The school committee, at its organization meeting, re-elected Frederick Smith chairman, Arthur Lewis, secretary.

Town meeting was unusually long, unusually lively; when the smoke had cleared, wage increases had been given all town employees, though the tax rate remained precisely at 1941's figure.

A salvage committee was appointed early in April, Harry Learnard being its first chairman, Harry I. Emmons succeeding him later in the year. Leonard James, Dr. Arthur Darling and Joseph McCarthy, at various times, attended advanced civilian defense training schools at Amherst.

Alan Polgreen, chairman of the public safety committee since before war broke out, resigned upon his induction August 13, and was succeeded in a few weeks by Douglas Byers. Mrs. Julie Musk, on moving to Maine, resigned from the school committee, Miss Barbara Loomer being appointed for her unexpired term.

J. Everett Collins, because of the pressure of his other duties, resigned as head of the rationing board, and was later succeeded by Foster C. Barnard, a member of the board, with Henry G. Tyer, since its foundation. Later, the board was tripled in size to meet its vastly increased responsibilities.

Both the fire and police departments lost several members to the armed forces during the year, but no permanent appointments were made to fill the vacancies.

J. Everett Collins was renominated for representative in General Court, and later re-elected by a handy margin. On Milton C. Blanchard's entering Navy service on November 20, Miss Evelyn Banning became acting principal of the Junior High School. John H. McDonald, in early December, was re-appointed as postmaster by President Roosevelt and the U. S. Senate.

There were lots of other things happening in Andover in 1942—blackouts, draft registrations and inductions, rationing regulations, robberies, fires and what have you. That part of the summary will have to be detailed here next week.

Nutrition Authority To Speak For Red Cross

Miss Catherine M. Lawlor, home economics instructor at the Essex County Agricultural school, will give a talk on nutrition Friday, January 8, at 2:30 in the American Legion hall.

She will take as her topic, "What to eat and why." This will be the first in a series of three lectures, to which all Andover housewives are invited. The talks are sponsored by the nutrition service of the local Red Cross chapter.

devoted about two years' work. He maintained his residence here from 1928 until his death.

Another decorative map, depicting the cultures which have flourished in North America, now hangs in the Archaeology building. One of the principal exhibits at the museum, an accurate scale model of the village of Pecos in New Mexico, with a painted background and small carved figures, was constructed by him over a period of two years. The models were made from drawings and photographs by Dr. Alfred V. Kidder, research associate with the Peabody Foundation, who had supervised the Pecos excavations.

He was also author of the carved ship's prow and painted backdrop for the figurehead now in the marine room of the Addison art gallery. Recently, he had begun a series of models intended to represent a history of the American dwelling house, for the Gallery, but passed away before he had completed the first in the series.

Before coming to Phillips academy, he had been an architect in New York, and had once managed a large tobacco plantation in Maryland.

He was educated in France in the 1880's, a time when a strong new national art tradition was being established there. He also studied paleontology and anatomy for some time in Belgium.

News Of Old Andover

50 YEARS AGO. Alexander Dick was elected master workman of Lincoln lodge, A.O.U.W.... Edwin Reed, an Andover man, told Pynchard students that Shakespeare's works had really been written by Bacon. Sounds like sabotage... A Boston paper awarded Lewis M. Woodbridge $5 a week for life for guessing closest to the presidential electoral vote total. Another Boston paper had awarded him a trip to the World's Fair, just a year ago. The Boston papers also printed news occasionally.... Young Ned Reed was severely injured trying to climb onto the back of a wagon... Murphy's restaurant was to have an ell built because of the increased business.

25 YEARS AGO. St. Augustine's church unfurled a service flag with 92 stars. Rev. Thomas Gasson, former president of Boston College, gave the principal address... Clifford Dunnells was home on a ten-day leave from Camp McLennan... Miss Edna C. Chapin, commercial instructor at Pynchard, resigned... Dr. and Mrs. Fuller got a Christmas letter from their son, Samuel, commissioner of the Italian Red Cross... Miss Irene Arnold was substituting at the Bailey school... Lieut. William B. Higgins was named to the staff of General Lister, commanding a field artillery brigade... Miss Florence MacCreedy left to teach in Chicago.

10 YEARS AGO. It had been an interesting year—the defeat of the state school proposition, the unemployment wrangles, appointment of a postmaster, school board reports and salary cuts... Herbert Merrick was elected deacon at the West church's annual meeting... Telephone operators donated worn clothing to needy children... The emergency committee had already spent $8,000 for relief... Three members of the Brouillard family were hurt in an auto crash... One of the five men who allegedly held up a West Andover camp was held for the grand jury.

The company is making good progress with each of its drills, which are held Sunday mornings at the Phillips Cage at 10:00. An officers' school is held twice each month, and non-commissioned officers' schools are also held.

The noncom school is held every two weeks, and consists of lectures, the working out of infantry problems, and usually, motion pictures furnished by the War Department. The pictures combine both the interesting and educational features of military training.

Each Wednesday evening, a school of the rifle is conducted by Sergt. Kenneth Minard, who is an experienced firearms instructor. Matters taught include the names of all parts of the rifle, shotgun and sub-machine gun, and later will include pistols.

Instruction is also given on target shooting, and each man in the company will qualify on the range with a rifle before May 1. To date, the following have qualified:

As expert: Sgts. H. A. Parker and K. S. Minard; Pvts. A. J. Bergeron and B. A. Ryberg. As sharpshooter: Sgts. K. B. Mozeen and C. W. Miller; Cpls. William S. Watt and F. R. Rody; and Pvt. L. D. Stickney. As marksmen: Pvts. Louis Kurpiel, G. F. Lannon and F. M. Winn.

Schools

received the following figures on the cost of converting the school units to the burning of coal: Bradley school, $500; West Center, $125; North School, $75. Converting the hot water heater in the Memorial Gymnasium would cost approximately $75. The increased cost of janitor service would also have to be considered in the event of a change to coal.

ODT regulations concerning transportation are also being considered by the sub-committee, as a matter entirely distinct from the school problem. There is a possibility that only children living two miles or more from a school will be given school bus service hereafter, and many of those who now use the busses may have to walk a mile and a half to meet a bus.

The sub-committee is attempting to learn the reaction of those affected by these problems before it makes its recommendations to the full board Tuesday night.

LIBRARY NOTES

Birds across the sky—Florence P. Jaques. Accompanying her husband, an ornithologist, in his many field trips, Mrs. Jaques had many delightful experiences learning the names and ways of the birds, and met many famous bird-lovers. The book is beautifully illustrated.

The robe—Lloyd C. Douglas. In an attempt to find a suitable answer to a question sent him, "What became of the robe for which the soldiers gambled at Christ's crucifixion?" the author of "The Magnificent Obsession" has written this fascinating story.

The art of seeing—Aldous Huxley. This is the story of his own improvement in vision after following the course prescribed by Dr. Bates' method of re-education of the eyes.

Queen of the flat-tops—Johnson. Full-length portrait of the U. S. S. Lexington from the beginning of her career to the day of her destruction. Thrilling description of exciting events and outstanding heroism.

Valley of decision—Marla Davenport. Five generations of a family who own a steel mill, and the varying fortunes of its members, is the setting for the outstanding character drawing of Mary Rafferty, the family maid, whose devotion held the Scotts together.

Books related in various ways to the war situation: Principles of flight—Shields. Principles of aircraft engines—Shields. Aviation mathematics—Buchan. Sheet metal pattern drafting—O'Rourke. Nutrition and fitness—Bogert. Newer knowledge of nutrition—McCullum. Why we are at war—Slosson. The road to Vichy—Simon. Great offensive—Werner. World order in historical perspective—Kohn. Lord of Alaska—Chevigny. Purser's manual and marine store-keeping—Hill.

Benefit Street—David Cornel DeJong. Benefit street, in Providence, R. I., is the locale of this story. One of a row of boarding houses shelters fourteen tenants of varying interests and professions. The interweaving of their lives and the startling climax to their more or less strange stories hold the reader's attention.

We took to the woods—Louise D. Rich. The everyday life of a family in the Rangeley Lake district of Maine has a year-round routine of chores. All who would enjoy the satisfactions of living far from civilization will find this repetition of tasks more than they compensated in this delightful record of forest, river and wild animal friendships.

Our hearts were young and gay—Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough. Back in the 1920's the authors, fresh out of college, undertook to "do" Europe. Their recollections of the hazards and happiness make delightful reading.

For the younger readers: The three Hanses—David. Sharon's career—Hall. Jamba the elephant—Waldeck. Against all odds—Lansing. Touch football—Grombach. Physical conditioning—Stafford. The courage and the glory—Flo-herty.

Lieut. Elizabeth Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wood, formerly of Lowell street, is now stationed at the Army Base hospital at Bangor, Me. She is a graduate of Pynchard high school and the Lawrence General hospital nurses' training school.

Let us enter the New Year determined to work harder so that the day will be brought nearer when the boys come home.

Budget Decrease $5100 Found Possible

A decrease of $5100 in appropriations for the control of the board of selectmen was reported as a result of a meeting of the directors of the Taxpayers' association. Decreases as tentatively proposed by directors Louis Fingert, Thomson in a recent meeting with the selectmen were: aid to dependent soldiers down $800; soldiers' aid down $500; public welfare down $500; elections and registration down $1800; interest down $100; retirement down $100.

Old age assistance. There will be a new appropriation for "war assistance" for men in the service who need that they

Several questions were brought up at the meeting, particularly about civil defense insurance. A further decrease was made by the budget committee.

Other directors present were Joseph T. Gagne, William T. Gagne, and Edmond Tomlinson. The school committee is coming to a special meeting. The W. budget is still in the process of formulation.
